Peptides in Skin Care

Peptides represent the newest skin care technology. They function as messengers, allowing the epidermis and dermis to communicate more efficiently.

Acetyl Hexapeptide (Argireline) deters the degeneration of collagen and elastin, smoothes the skin and reduces the depth of wrinkles up to 30%.

Palmitoyl Pentapeptide (Matrixyl) stimulates increased production and synthesis of collagen and hyaluronic acid. Studies show deep wrinkle improvement of 45%, wrinkle density 37% and wrinkle depth 15%. Skin elasticity and tone improved 19.5% and lifting effect of 17%.

Palmitoyl Oligopeptide also stimulates synthesis of collagen and hyaluronic acid in deep layers of the skin and provides mild UV protection. After 28 days of use, clinical research showed the following: surface roughness reduced 17%; mean depth of wrinkles reduced 23%, with large wrinkles improving up to 39%; increase in skin thickness of 4%.

Peptides have a proven strong efficacy in treating and preventing premature aging of the skin, without harmful chemicals or surgery.
